Thaddeus Stevens.

From the New York Tribune.

The contest for the Senatorship in Pennsylvania has a national significance We have not ventured to speak, because we have always felt that the States should settle these matters for themselves, without outside interference But in Pennsylvania the Republican party seem to have a duty, from which it would be timid to shrink, and that is the election of Mr Stevens as the successor of Mr Cowan We are not unmindful of the claims of Mr Cameron, Gov Curtin, Col Forney and Mr Grow Mr Cameron has been a good Republican, and during the war was considered quite radical Gov Curtin as the Chief Executive of the great State of Pennsylvania, showed loyalty and energy Few Republican leaders have been more courageous than Col Forney—He has done true service for the Republican party of Pennsylvania, and did much to elect Geary We regret that he has retired from the canvass although most probably his retirement now will make him a strong candidate of the party when it comes to elect the successor of the silent Mr Buckalew, two years hence Mr Grow enters the canvass with all the vigor of 1861, when he stood among the rising statesmen of the Republican party

We still think, with all appreciation of the services of the distinguished gentlemen named, that Thaddeus Stevens should be elected Senator from Pennsylvania We say this of Mr Stevens, although perhaps we have as many differences with him as with any of our leaders Our ways have been apart at times But in choosing a Senator it is not wise to select mere politicians who to day go this road, and to morrow another, like ships at sea who wait for wind and current It is this foolish temporizing this accepting of men who talk loudly, in preference to the sturdy and patient soldier who has stood true to his guns for years, that destroys the integrity of a party It is not much to be a Republican of to day We take with us now the drift wood and scum But it was something to be a lover of freedom and protection forty years ago For forty years Thaddeus Stevens has been the champion of freedom and protection He has stood by our party when it was a corporal's guard he leads it now when its columns cover the nation

It is said that Mr Stevens is too old We wish that one-half his colleagues were as young Venice found a savior in the great Dandolo, and did not feel that his years prevented him from defending the goniion of St Mark's Pennsylvania need not hesitate to crown with high honors her most illustrious son The Republican party will always be strong when its captains are selected from veterans who have served it as earnestly and wisely as Thaddeus Stevens

Synopsis of the Speech of Thad. Stevens on Reconstruction.

Mr Stevens addressed the House on the subject of reconstruction on Thursday the discussion being upon the substitute offered by Mr Stevens December 18, 1866, to the original bill also offered by Mr Stevens at the late session of Congress The bill is on the enabling act for the organization of loyal governments in the late rebel States

He said that he was anxious that this bill should be proceeded with until final action upon it He desired that the House should as early as possible come to some conclusion as to what should be done with the rebel States This was becoming more and more necessary every day, and the late decision of the Supreme Court of the United States had rendered immediate action by Congress on the establishment of governments in the rebel States absolutely indispensable That decision though perhaps not so infamous as the Dred Scott decision was far more dangerous in its operation on the lives and liberties of the loyal men of the country It had taken away all protection from every loyal man, black or white, residing in any of the rebel States It had unsheathed the dagger of the assassin and the knife of the robber against the throat of every loyal man who dared to proclaim himself now or heretofore a loyal Union man It the doctrine of that decision were true, there never was a people in such terrible peril as the loyal people of the South, white and black Unless Congress proceeded at once and did something to protect those people from the barbarians that are now murdering the whites and putting into secret graves hundreds and thousands of colored people, it would be liable to the just censure of the world for its neglect, its cowardice or its want of ability This bill was an enabling act to enable loyal men in the rebel States to form governments and to put those governments into loyal hands so that they might protect themselves—The military authorities now commanding dared not order any General commanding a department in States which had never been restored from a state of conquest, and every one of which was held this day as conquered territory, to enforce the laws of the country One of the most atrocious murderers ever let loose in a community, Watson, had been lately liberated by this very decision of the Supreme Court because the Government extended its construction, perhaps properly, to the conquered States as well as the loyal States

This Watson, whose case Mr Stevens briefly outlined, was discharged by order of the President under that most iniquitous and injurious decision If that decision was according to law, then it became the more necessary for Congress to proceed and take care that no such construction should open the door to larger injuries than have been already sustained The people had done their duty nobly Had Congress the courage to do its duty? Or was it to be deterred by the clamor of ignorance bigotry and despotism from perfecting the resolution? He believed that in Persia, in the past, and in Turkey, in the present, they were as free as the freedmen of this country now are He would not slander his native land, but would reform it Twenty years ago he had denounced it as a despotism, that 20,000,000 whites should govern 4,000,000 blacks He pronounced it no nearer a free Republic now, when 25,000,000 of a privileged class undertook to exclude 5,000 000 from all participation in the Government No Government could be regarded as free which did not allow all its people to participate in the formation and execution of its laws Such a Babel like confusion was caused by the intermingling of pardoned Rebels, hissing Copperheads and apostate Republicans, that it was difficult either to understand the questions asked or the answers given Speaking of the President, he said that although the President was Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, Congress was his commander, and please God, he should be made to obey The President and his satraps should know that this was a government of the people, and that Congress was the people Unless impartial suffrage were introduced in the rebel States every one of them would be sure to send a solid rebel representation, and cast a solid rebel electoral vote They, with their kindred Copperheads of the North, would always dictate to the President and control Congress And the people of the North would be the perpetual vassals and slaves of the South Mr Stevens modified the third section of the substitute so as to provide that the Commissioners for each of the rebel States should be appointed by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, instead of being elected by Congress

The Colliery Explosion.

It is estimated that £20,000 will be needed to relieve the sufferers at Hoyle Mill and Take O' the Hill, of which sum only about one-fourth is subscribed.

The cause of the Hanley explosion has been placed beyond a doubt

The searchers, in the course of their work, have come upon the body of the blacksmith and a lump with the top off lying by his side

The unfortunate man, whose head was blown to pieces, had gone down to shoe some horses, and, carelessly strolling into the workings with his uncovered lamp, brought death upon himself and all the other unhappy victims of this calamity

The terrible sufferings of those of the colliers who were rescued from the pit may be conceived from the following account, furnished by Moses Taylor, one of the men who were saved He says that on Thursday morning he was engaged in the new seven foot workings, nearly two hundred yards from the spot where the explosion took place, and about one hundred yards from the shaft. The accident was made known to him while he was "mapping," or eating his lunch, by the "braddishing" or tarred sheet at an opening near him being suddenly carried away by the violent wind He rose up instantly and drew his coat over his face, expecting flames but they did not reach him One of his companion since dead said that there was a fire in the pit and advised an instant retreat in the direction of the shaft About ten of them immediately began to do so, running as fast as they could, but they were met by a man who having gone in advance, had now returned and who told them that the smoke and flames were too much

"We were awfully flurried" said the man "at hearing this, but we went down the air road, thinking that we might be able to get to the shaft that way When we had got a little distance along we saw that one of the brick stoppings had been blown down, and that through the opening the gas was coming toward us, and it was so powerful that we could not get that way We then went to the level way, but could not go far, the stink stopping us, though it was not so bad there We stayed there for a while not knowing where to go, but the stench began to grow stronger We sat there almost in despair, and then we went through the stopping again to see if we could not get through to the air way But we could not, and we silently turned back again to the old place Then we consulted and came to the conclusion that we must not stay there, but must make a last effort to get to the shaft The gas was gradually growing stronger We made the attempt—Joseph Johnson and Thomas Knowles leading the way, and I being nearly last I held my Davy lamp in one hand and with the other covered my mouth and nose with my comforter Two or three of the first tumbled down as we walked along they were overpowered by the gas and we left them for dead As I went along I saw many dead men lying on the ground, but how many I cannot say I was obliged to tread on some of the bodies, I trod on one, and he groaned and said 'Oh dear' I thought I should have died Samuel Barnett and myself were the only two out of the ten or twelve that got to the shaft, the others were all overpowered with the gas How we reached the bottom of the shaft I cannot remember but I know that I groped about for the signal wire, but could not find it I shouted for help, and I think that some one in the upper level heard me As I shouted, Barnett fell down full length insensible and I do not remember anything more until I was in my own home"

History of Lincoln and the Overthrow of Slavery.*

From the Chicago Evening Journal

We have received the advance sheets of this great work great alike in conception and in execution and from its perusal derived peculiar pleasure and profit Many of the facts are familiar, others entirely new, while all are arranged with skill, and an evident regard to strict accuracy The author could say of a large proportion of his history all of which I saw and a part of which I was We doubt if there is another man in the nation so well adapted to perform the task undertaken and successfully carried through in this volume as Mr Arnold for besides being a practical statesman, he was for many years the intimate friend of Mr Lincoln To say that this history is not open to criticism would be untrue but a truthful critique upon it would be confined to minor points of rhetoric There may be some trivial blunders in historical data but if so careful perusal has failed to direct them We are confident that the high expectations of the public will be in the main fully realized

Greeley's American Conflict, to which Arnold's Lincoln bears some resemblance, supplied a certain demand, but did not, to any considerable extent, cover the ground gone over in the book before us Greeley especially in his second volume gives us an account, as the title of his history indicates of the Great Conflict while Arnold's work might, with entire fitness be called a constitutional history of the rise and fall of American Slavery, dealing as it does mainly with political or civil issues and struggles

That the reader may form some idea of the range and completeness of Mr Arnold's history, we will give a brief analysis of it Dedicated with marked propriety to the Thirty seventh and Thirty eighth Congress it traces with great clearness the conflict between Freedom and Slavery which really commenced with the Convention which framed and submitted to the people the National Constitution and which closed with the final adoption, by three fourths of the State Legislatures of the Constitutional Amendment forever prohibiting slavery throughout the Republic The author rapidly yet with completeness, traces the gradual growth and operation of the Slave Power, especially the repeal of the Missouri Compromise and its natural child the Charleston Convention He also gives us, with equal fidelity, the growth and operation of the Anti Slavery movement as seen in the history of the Abolition Free Soil and Republican parties including the Kansas struggle

With the campaign that resulted in Mr Lincoln's election to the Presidency begins the main body of the work From that time on we have an exhaustive history of the Republic, especially its civil affairs Every anti slavery measure, whether legislative, executive or judicial of Mr Lincoln's Administration is given with its cause and immediate effect The history of the adoption of the Constitutional Amendments abolishing Slavery is also fully given The debates in Congress, together with sketches of the leading members of the two Houses composing the Thirty seventh and the Thirty eighth Congress, are so well presented as to give the reader an inside, or 'green room' view of the movements of parties and leaders during those eventful four years

The history of Mr Lincoln's views and acts upon the subject of reconstruction is fully set forth with many facts of great interest which have never been published Mr Arnold's familiar acquaintance with Mr Lincoln and his entire trustworthiness give to the biographical feature of the work special value No previous biography of Lincoln has done justice to the subject, those who essayed to write his memoir having been quite deficient in personal knowledge, and general "rapport" Mr Arnold has succeeded far beyond any of his predecessors in the same field

A volume combining in one so much of general interest being in fact, as in name the history of Abraham Lincoln and of the overthrow of slavery, deserves, and we doubt not will secure, a place in all well selected libraries

*The History of Abraham Lincoln and the Overthrow of Slavery By Isaac N Arnold late member of Congress from Illinois Chicago Clarke & Co, Publishers, 1866

The End of a Gambler.

Among the innumerable anecdotes related of the ruin of persons at play there is one worth relating, which refers to a Mr Porter, a gentleman who, in the reign of Queen Anne possessed one of the best estates in Northumberland, the whole of which he lost at hazard in twelve months According to the story told of this madman—for we can call him nothing else—when he had just completed the loss of his last acre, at a gambling house in London, and was proceeding down stairs to throw himself into a carriage to convey him home to his house in town, he resolved to have one more throw to try and retrive his losses and immediately returned to the room where the play was going on Nerved for the worst that might happen, he insisted that the person he had been playing with should give him one chance of recovery or fight with him

His proposition was this That his carriage and horses, the trinkets and loose money in his pockets, his town house, plate and furniture—in short, all he had left in the world, should be valued in a lump at a certain sum, and be thrown at a single cast No persuasion should prevail upon him to depart from his purpose He threw and lost then conducting the winner to the door, he told the coachman there was his master, and marched forth in the dark and dismal streets, without house or home, or any creditable means of support Thus beggared he retired to an obscure lodging in a cheap part of the town, subsisting partly on charity, sometimes acting as a marker at a billiard table, and occasionally as a helper in a livery stable

In this miserable condition, with nakedness and famine staring him in the face, exposed to the taunts and insults of those whom he had once supported, he was recognised by an old friend, who gave him ten guineas to purchase necessaries He expended five in procuring decent apparel with the remaining five he repaired to a common gaming house and increased it to fifty He then adjourned to one of the higher order of houses sat down with former associates, and won £20 000 Returning the next night, he lost it all, and was once more penniless, and after subsisting many years in abject poverty, died a beggar at St Giles

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.

A Republican caucus of the members of the House is called for to-night in the Representative Chamber. It is induced by a desire to consider the project now in view of introducing a resolution of impeachment on Monday, and also to take into deliberation the new issue that is being defined on the Constitutional Amendment. The latter question has lately begun to take shape in the guise of Southern importunities, to know whether the adoption of that Amendment would be considered as an ultimatum to be rewarded with the admittance to representation in Congress. In the caucus to-night, the possibility of declaring by joint resolution that it is the sense of this Congress that no Southern State should be admitted that has not undergone a complete revision of the governments established by the Executive, will be considered with reference to its early passage.

A strong Republican element will oppose the impeachment project to-night, on the ground of inexpediency.

The Arkansas delegation endeavored to see Sumner and Thad Stevens to-day. The delegation dined this evening with Secretary Seward.

A delegation, composed of Gen. J. W. Fisher and Hon. E. Billingfelt, State Senators from Lancaster, and one of its Representatives, Mr. Armstrong, with several other gentlemen from Lancaster, are reported to have called on Thad Stevens yesterday morning, to invite him to be present at Harrisburg, to consult his political friends in reference to the approaching contest in Pennsylvania for the Senatorship. Mr. Stevens, in response, promised to leave for Harrisburg on Monday.

The Washington Chronicle asserts this morning that a portion of the delegation and those accompanying it, were Curtin men, who were authorized to promise a transfer of the strength of the latter to Stevens, should the contest narrow to Stevens and Cameron.

Thirty-Ninth Congress—Second Session.

HOUSE—Jan. 5.

The Speaker stated that under the rule adopted yesterday no business could be transacted and that there should be nothing but debate, as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Spaulding, of Ohio, was assigned the floor and commenced a speech by an allusion to remarks uttered by him some days ago in relation to certain remarks attributed to him in the Chronicle. For these he was subjected, as was always the case, to the caustic remarks of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Stevens.)

Mr. Spaulding then read Mr. Stevens' remarks on the occasion, wherein he (Stevens,) stated that the doctrine set forth in Mr. Spaulding's resolution of inquiry was made pernicious.

The resolution simply directed the Committee on Judiciary to inquire into the expediency of doing a certain thing. He (Mr. Spaulding) desired it to be amended. He would also have all the States South adopt the amendment.

—Those of our business men and others, wishing a neat counting room calendar for 1867, can obtain the same free of charge on application to this office. They are printed on colored card board, eight by ten inches.

—The Erie Dispatch announces that Charles Edwyn Hurd, Esq, one of the editorial staff of that paper, has committed matrimony. We hope so good an example will not be lost upon those of his associates who are eligible to the same distinction

—Messrs. Olmstead & Jewhurst have sold one hundred and sixty tickets in the Crosby Opera House distribution, thirty-five of which have been sold since the 1st of January. The books close on the 15th and the drawing will take place on the 21st instant. See article from the Chicago Journal.

—Mr. C. M. Wheeler, who was so seriously injured by being caught in a shaft on the 21st ult., is sufficiently recovered to walk about the streets. His left arm, which was severely wrenched in the struggle, remains totally disabled, and a long time must elapse before his complete recovery.

—At a recent meeting of the Erie Presbytery, held at Meadville, Rev. Dr. Reynolds and S. M. Eaton, and Elders S. S. Spencer and Samuel Geibner were appointed delegates to the Presbyterian Centennial Convention, to be held in Pittsburgh in February next. Rev. Mr. Eaton was appointed historian.

—Senator Lowry, of Erie, has introduced an act to amend an act of 1849, relative to railroads, and embodying the features of a general railroad law. It grants power to any corporation of seven persons to build railroads It is the same bill that was reported through the Local Judiciary Committee last winter.

—Sheriff Peck was here last week distributing New Year gifts in the shape of hats, caps, gloves and furs at "ruinously" low prices. We believe he will return this week for the purpose of making donations of coats, vests, pants, etc., upon the same plan of distribution. It may be fun for the Sheriff, but it is death to his "particular friends."

—A colored boy named Douglas, residing in Corry, has invented a new and destructive fire arm in the shape of a rifle-battery, which is on exhibition in Buffalo. It is constructed in such a manner as to throw one hundred and eight Minnie balls at one discharge from percussion shell cartridges, and the machine can be kept in continual operation. Experienced military men have examined the battery, and pronounce it one of the most formidable pieces of ordinance yet invented.

—Two of our little newspaper cotemporaries in Venango county have taken to advertising their "sour grapes." They make as ferocious an onslaught upon the MORNING HERALD as did the Lilliputian warriors upon poor Gulliver. They certainly made him smart for his "metropolitan" proportions; and perhaps the old fellow deserved it. But Gulliver's revenge was forgiveness. We all know what magnanimity he displayed when the Lilliputians' houses were on fire and their children were burning up. And so would we. Whenever we shall seriously attempt to extinguish our miniature neighbors, it will probably be by the same method. Until then we shall treat them with the same courtesy we extend to all other incorrigible deadheads, viz: drop them from the free list, and say nothing more about them.

Meteorological Record.

We are indebted to the Rev. N. G. Luke of this city for the following record of meteorological changes for the week ending January 5th. The letter a signifies above; the letter b below:

January	1	2	3	4	5
6 o'clock a. m.	12°a	16°a	13°b	16°a	11°a
1 " p. m.	15°a	18°a	23a°	31°a	26°a

This record exhibits the two extremes of temperature. If the degrees of temperature in the morning at six and afternoon at two be added, and then divided by two, the product will give the mean temperature of the day. By this rule, which is quite accurate, the mean temperature for the above period would be as follows: January 1st, 13½° above; 2d, 14° do; 3d, 21° do; 4th, 20½° do; 5th, 23½° do.

Mr. Luke has made similar observations during the last ten years, and informs us that we have had a more severe winter in the month of December, 1866, and greater extremes of cold, than in any corresponding period since 1856.

MASONIC.—Charles L. Wheeler, M. E. H. P., of Aaron Chapter No. 207, of Titusville, has lately been appointed Deputy Grand High Priest for the counties of Warren and Erie and the city of Titusville. The appointment is well bestowed and will give general satisfaction to the Order. A Chapter is soon to be constituted at Girard, in Erie county.

If you want a stove that will use fuel economically, heat up quickly and give perfect satisfaction, buy Spear's anti-duster parlor stove. Bain & Copeland are the agents.

New and Then.

When Congress adjourned it was at issue with the President on a plan for reconstruction, and the country was to decide between them. The North has since pronounced against "my policy" and the Southern States have since rejected the Constitutional Amendment, and so the deadlock continues. What remains to be done? Why for Congress to supersede the State Governments which Johnson set up in 1861; to treat the Southern States as defunct and legislate for them as for territories. Suffrage is regulated by States we are told, and was not Slavery too the creature of their State laws, a municipal institution? And yet we abolished Slavery. We have just as much jurisdiction over the one as the other. The South by seeking to overturn the Constitution forfeited all rights under it. The abolition of Slavery was not only a penal measure and the just fruit of rebellion, but was demanded by the public safety. So, too, with suffrage, this is but an incident of abolition and essential to the protection of the freedmen.

It is free schools and remunerative industry that make a community prosperous, and once make suffrage conditional upon intelligence and prosperity and you give the greatest possible stimulus to the cause of education, and the cause of labor in that community. The reorganization of the Southern States by Congress is made necessary by the refusal to accept the fair and magnanimous terms of the Constitutional Amendment. The insolence and impudence of the demands of the South instead of bringing the North to its bended knees and to dirt eating, as formerly, has only strengthened its firmness and resolution, as the late elections testify. The South has got a new ally, the Supreme Court, but it will avail it no more effectually than its old champion, the President. Congress is backed by the people, and holds the keys of the situation.

Finance.

For a number of years past millions of men were directly and indirectly deriving their support from the Government in its naval, military or civil service in their different departments The withdrawal of this immense number of men from the industrial pursuits of the country, and especially from the producing classes, of course raised wages and the value of services of all kinds, and gave additional value or price to all the products of the factory, the work shop and the farm. The inflation of the currency gave rise to speculation and business enterprises of every kind, and the plentifulness of money also induced social extravagance and prodigality to an unprecedented extent.

The reaction has come. The Government instead of furnishing employment and pay to millions of men now demands of them a portion of their own earnings or income for its own support. These men resuming their business pursuits reduce by their competition the price of labor. The contraction of the currency has stopped speculation, and produced a decline and almost a panic in trade.

People look to the Government to save them from bankruptcy and financial embarrassment, and are distressed to find the discord and confusion that prevails among statesmen, as to what legislation the situation demands. Some favor an immediate return to specie payments, and the making Treasury Notes and Postal Currency receivable as coin in payment to the United States for duties, imports and so forth.—Others are opposed to any contraction of the currency, as destructive of banks, and public and private credit.

One thing, however, we may agree upon, and that is that this generation should not be called upon to pay the whole or the better part of the national debt. We have spent our blood to save the Government, and we have preserved it as much for the benefit of posterity as ourselves, and posterity should bear a part of the burden of paying a part of the national debt, as well as ourselves. We should only be taxed to meet the current expenses of the Government, and to pay the interest on the debt till this financial crisis is past The substracting hundreds of millions every year from the active working capital of the business men of the country to reduce the principal of the national debt is no reasonable, impolitic, unjust and unnecessary.

It is only within the last two years that England undertook to reduce her gigantic debt contracted by her war with Napoleon. And our own National history has a precedent of the same character, the first Federal debt existing some sixteen years before Congress made an effort to reduce it. Let us not attempt too much at a time. The people will not stand legislation that crushes and impoverishes them.

Judicious Advertising.

There is absolutely nothing that so assists in building up the prosperity of merchants and business men as the judicious use of the advertising columns of a live newspaper. Differences of material or wares require equal differences in the manner in which these articles should be brought before the public. For instance, notices of manufactures, the qualities of which are well known, and the purchase of which require a heavy outlay, need but little changing. But in use of perishable articles, articles that are constantly changing in price, and for which there is daily demand, the fact is otherwise. Some commodities fluctuate in price. Frequently a tradesman has new articles to offer, and probably deals largely in articles intended for immediate consumption, and which must be sold within a reasonable time, or else the owner inevitably suffers loss. His remedy is to so advertise as to bring his fresh articles, or new price lists, prominently before the people The articles of a month ago may not be in season now, and therefore the advertisement needs to be revised, because the public don't know that what they want may be found there; and there are advertisers who are wise enough to know the fact that the reading public are more apt to go to a place that by daily observation they know contains the required articles, than to seek them elsewhere.

Those who deal in attire, whether for male or female wear, are especially constrained to advertise liberally. Fashion is imperative ruler to this class and too strong is her seat of government to be successfully combatted, and therefore those that are wise, instead of offering to oppose the current, glide gaily along with it, by purchasing goods and articles of the latest fashion, and advertising them as such and getting rid of them as fast as possible, knowing well that the fashions change suddenly, and that it is policy to be ever prepared to change with them.

LECTURE BY PROF. HYDE.—The Young Men's Literary Association of Titusville announce that a lecture will be delivered in Corinthian Hall, on Tuesday (to-morrow) evening, by Prof. A. B. Hyde, of Allegheny College. The title of the lecture is "The Lesson of the Mill Pond." It has been delivered in Meadville, and is spoken of by those who heard it as an instructive and entertaining lecture. Prof. H. is a gentleman of fine literary culture and acquirements, and is a favorite on the lyceum platforms of other cities. This is the first effort of the Junior Association to provide for the public entertainment. If suitably encouraged, it is their intention to secure such popular lecturers from time to time as are available, and engagements have already been made which will be announced in due season.

A Bold Piece of Incendiarism and its Timely Discovery.

On Saturday night about 10 o'clock, some of the occupants of Ullman & Auerbach's block, on the corner of Spring and Franklin streets, discovered that the room opening from the head of the stairs on the right, directly above Auerbach's cigar store, was on fire. This room had been used for cigar making and communicated by a trap and stairway with the store beneath. The alarm of fire was instantly given, and the door of the cigar room kicked open from the hall. Chief Engineer Winsor arrived at the same moment, and finding the room filled with smoke crept upon his hands and knees to the source of the conflagration. This he found to be within an enclosure erected in one corner of the room for storage and drying purposes.—The fire had been kindled beneath an inverted box about two feet square, filled with oak shavings and splinters. The fire had been partially smothered for want of draft, and but a small quantity of the shavings were burned. The flames, however, had communicated to the wall and the enclosure, and it was obvious that but for this timely discovery, the building would have soon been in flames. As it was, they were easily extinguished.

The evidence of incendiarism was perfectly irresistible. None of the proprietors of the building, or their employes were visible, and the Chief Engineer and Chief of Police proceeded to examine the premises. Subsequently Mr. —— Ullman arrived in company with Mr. Marcus At the request of the officers they opened Ullman & Bro.'s store for examination. At the rear a door was found opening beneath the central stair case, and communicating through another door with Auerbach's cigar store. Thence a staircase led to the trap door before mentioned, and gave access to the cigar manufactory on the second floor, where the fire was ignited.

Mr. Auerbach and his employes finally arrived and shared in the general astonishment of the proprietary interest, that so mysterious an event should have occurred without their knowledge.

This is the second incendiary attempt to destroy the same building. The former was in August last, when the fire was set within a stairway closet on the second floor. The aggregate insurance on stock and building is reported to us at $11,500, Mr. Ullman having $6,000 and Mr. Auerbach $5,500. Without designing to cast a shade of suspicion upon any person, we think the public interest imperatively demands a judicial investigation of the facts without delay Had the fire occurred at midnight, there is no estimating the extent of the disaster. That it was deliberately planned and coolly executed, there is not a shadow of doubt, for one of the cigar-makers asserts that when he left the premises at five o'clock there were no shavings within the enclosure referred to, and no fire in the stove. What the motive, and who the incendiary? Let a searching investigation reveal.

Justice's Court.

BEFORE JUSTICE MOWBRAY, JANUARY 4.

Commonwealth vs. M Bergerman.—On the complaint of N F. Bridstreet, (partner in the firm of Churchill & Co., of Rochester,) the defendant is charged with a fraudulent disposition of his goods, with intent to defraud his creditors.

The evidence proves that on the 20th of December, 1866, defendant purchased in Rochester, of Churchill & Co, twelve cases of merchandise, valued at $791 40, for cash, or thirty days, representing that he was going to New York by the 4:50 p m train These goods arrived in Titusville by express on Saturday, the 22d of December On Monday, December 24, two cases are sold for cash to H. Goldstein, and on the same day defendant instructs his clerk to proceed to Petroleum Centre and there dispose of the remaining ten cases The clerk being late for the evening express, proceeds by the 10:30 night train, and agrees on that night to send the goods on the next day, to be credited off the defendant's account, no money passing. The next day, Tuesday, these ten cases were re-directed in the express office to Petroleum Centre and are sent forward

On the morning of Wednesday the 26th, defendant signed various judgment notes, purporting on their face to have been signed on the 24th in order that they might be entered up at Meadville on the 27th, thus allowing to the three days grace. These notes thus entered up are in favor, as follows: Jacob Webster, (who credited the ten cases) for $600; next J. Davis for $500, next Mendel Jacobs for $1 200; next Freedman Bros., for $470; next Zunansky Bros, $3 098; next H. B Claflin, $3,200; next Holstein, Mazens & Co., $106; and lastly Loder Bros, & Co, $159 All these entered judgment notes are entered up at Mendville methodically and in order. The first commencing at 3:20 p. m, with intervals between each, varying from five to thirty minutes, the last having been entered at 4,30 p. m. A telegram is then flashed by the Sheriff at Meadville to his deputy at Titusville, who thereupon seizes the stock of goods in defendant's store. The complainant insists this is a fraudulent disposition of his property The defendant responds it is all done within the letter of the law The defendant's clerk in explanation of his late journey to Petroleum Centre, swore, that M Bergerman, the defendant, said he expected the judgments he had given (they were not given until two days afterwards, according to the attorney's evidence, although dated on the day of that journey) would otherwise seize these ten cases, and therefore to avoid the Sheriff's levy, he acted as described and made the disposition of these cases that very night

Counsel for defendant claims these acts were simple preferences to certain creditors, that no fraud has been committed, but that after the purchase at Rochester he became overwhelmed, and all subsequent acts were done under pressure.

Briefly, goods bought for cash in Rochester on Thursday afternoon, arrive in Titusville on Saturday evening too late for removal; four-fifths of them are offered on the Monday night, as a credit off an account, and transferred without the least provision being made for the claim of the parties from whom they have been so recently procured. And the reason alleged for this midnight sale, did not exist until two days afterwards, for it was not until the 26th the judgment notes were signed, whilst the disposal of the goods was completed on the 24th. To discharge the defendant, I am required to assume that these twelve cases of merchandise were purchased in good faith, and disposed of under sudden and unexpected pressure. Such a conclusion I regret that I cannot arrive at; such method, promptitude and system in the disposition of these goods and his other assets, suggests provision in their purchase, amounting, in my opinion, to intent to defraud, and in justice to those creditors, who have been excluded from participating in defendant's assets, I must remit this case for the consideration of a jury. I therefore hold the defendant himself in $1,000 bail, with two sureties of $500 each, to answer at the next Quarter Sessions of the Peace, to be held at Meadville. The complainant is also held as a witness to appear, giving his own recognizance for $200.

Arrangements for the Drawing of the Art Association.

From the Chicago Journal

The preparations for the drawing are almost completed. It will take place on the afternoon of the 21st of January, at half-past two o'clock, the Opera House being engaged for the evening. The certificates of the Association will admit the holders, on being shown at the entrances.

We have already given the names of the gentlemen representing the several cities, who have accepted the invitation to be present.

People have so generally deferred purchasing until the drawing was actually at hand that the demand now has become a rush. The agents are telegraphing for more certificates from every quarter. There is not the slightest doubt that all will be taken up. There are mercantile firms enough in this city who will not let a certificate remain

Over thirty thousand propositions to form small clubs have been sent out by banks and merchants within the last two weeks, and if even a very small per centage of these return as they are now doing, the thing will be done.

PERSONAL.—The Meadville Republican announces that William Breed Drake, Esq, associate editor, is recovering from a severe illness and will soon be restored to health. The Meadville Journal recently stated that Mr. Drake would probably be compelled to relinquish the profession on account of impaired health, and return to the more congenial climate of his native State. We should sincerely regret, in common with the editorial fraternity, the necessity of such a course. Mr. Drake is a pungent and graceful writer and a worthy gentleman, and during his connection with the Republican has won an enviable reputation in the profession.

Now is the time to purchase blank books at reduced prices. B. N. COAL.—After an experiment with Auntie-Duster, Spear's Patent Stove, there are some parties in this city that have found that the price of coal is not $4 per ton, for the coal dealers still continue to insist that they must have an eleven dollar bill for a ton of A No coal.—Stoves are decidedly cheap this year We don't intend to sell stoves at cost, but will sell ten per cent cheaper than any other parties in the city who propose to sell at cost. Snow's Patent Liquid Packing Pump for OIL WELLS.—This celebrated "Pump" having been most successfully and generally used in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and bearing a fame unsurpassed for its durability and wear, and the general good results of its application, doing away with leather and all other flexible packing, thereby avoiding the perplexities of a leather packing valve, and having all the advantages of other pumps and valves in bringing and keeping up the production of oil, I take pleasure in announcing to the public that I am now prepared to furnish any demand for these Pumps at the shortest notice. Below I give a few of the numerous testimonials I have received in their favor, and also "by permission," refer for information as to their durability, and general good results to H. W. Fancett, Superintendent of Philadelphia Petroleum Company, using them in every pumping well belonging to the Company; W. J. Rancie, Superintendent of lease 33, Bennehoff Run; J. P. Fowler, Superintendent of New York & Chicago Petroleum Company, C. L. I. Winant, Church Run, Wm. Spence, Bennehoff Run; Mr. J. Hoope, Superintendent of Bennehoff Run Petroleum Company; E L Fitcher, Superintendent of National Oil Company; O. H. Page, Superintendent Ocean Oil Company.

TESTIMONIALS

WEST PITHOLE, Pa., Nov. 21, 1866.

WILLIAM H SNOW, Esq—DEAR SIR: In answer to your request for my experience with your pump, I cheerfully state that I have used one of them for about two months and have found them entirely reliable, having performed all the requirements that was claimed for them.

The entire absence of leather packing and consequent lessening of friction in the working barrels makes the train on the rocker rods much less, which is a great consideration in pumping deep wells, and I cheerfully recommend them to those having such

Yours, respectfully, EDWIN L. FITCHER, Superintendent National Oil Company.

BENNEHOFF RUN, Nov. 21, 1866

W. H SNOW—Dear Sir. In reply to yours, asking for a "some 60" statement, as to the use of your pump on this farm, I cheerfully certify that on the 15th of August last I applied one of your pumps to well 26, belonging to the Bennehoff Run Petroleum Company, which had been pumping four wells with a brass working barrel and 8 strokes, about forty barrels a day On the application of the "Snow Pump" the well increased to over one hundred barrels per day, and has been pumping at that rate ever since without ever having drawn the sucker rods to this date.

I also certify that I have three of your pumps in my own wells, viz. Nos. 51, "34" and 2 which have worked to my entire satisfaction, giving little or no trouble with drawing the rods. No. "34" is this morning producing at the rate of one hundred barrels per day.

Yours, very truly, WM SPENCE.

TITUSVILLE, Dec 29, 1866.

W. H. SNOW, Esq—DEAR SIR I am cheerfully certify in favor of your very valuable Pump I bought of Bryan, Dillingham & Co, having previously tried all manner of pumps valueless, with no apparent success. I found that your pump has increased my well over one half, and considering the low price of oil, when it takes large production to pay expenses, I consider your pump invaluable If another could not be procured I would not take $500 for it. R. W. DILBROOK, Supt N. Y. & Pennsylvania Lease Co.

Orders for these Pumps will be filled by addressing BRYAN, DILLINGHAM & CO., Sole Manufacturers, Titusville, Pa, and forwarded by express to all parts of the regions. W. H. SNOW, Titusville, Pa.

Schenck's Seaweed Tonic. This medicine invented by Dr. S Schenck, of Philadelphia, is intended to dissolve the food and make it fit for the first process of digestion. By dissolving the stomach with Schenck's Mandrake Pills, the Tonic soon restores the appetite, and food that could not be eaten before using it will be easily digested.

Consumption cannot be cured by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup unless the stomach and liver is made healthy and the appetite restored, hence the Tonic and Pills are required in nearly every case of consumption. A half dozen bottles of Seaweed Tonic and three or four boxes of Mandrake Pills will cure any ordinary case of dyspepsia.

Dr Schenck makes professional visits to New York, Boston, and at his principal Office in Philadelphia, every week See daily papers of each place, or his pamphlet on consumption for his days of visitation.

Please observe, when purchasing, that the two likenesses of the Doctor, one when in the first stage of Consumption, and the other as he now is, in perfect health, are on the Government stamp

All Sorts.

A cargo of rum was recently beached at New Brighton, England, and as the barrels were washed ashore a crowd of men and boys tapped them and drank till they were too drunk to drink longer. One young man fell dead on the spot. Nearly a hundred others suffered beyond telling from the effects of the debauch. A scene of extraordinary violence and indecency ensued, the details of which are entirely unfit for publication.

A rich old dotard of seventy-five, living near Springfield, Illinois, determined to marry a trim young farmer's daughter. His son Frank opposed the idea, and went to work to prevent the match. With great ostentation he purchased a coffin and a horrid-looking meat axe, and had them arranged in state at his father's house. Reversing the order of things, he declared the wedding baked meats should coldly furnish forth a funeral; that Miss Fanny, instead of a bride, should be a corpse; that his father might have a funeral, but no wedding; that standing there at the door of his paternal mansion, he would, with that sharpened meat-axe, cleave her from crown to sole; that the coffin prepared was for her decent burial, and, finally, that he was ready himself for the murderer's gibbet. The marriage was indefinitely postponed.

A certain Irish attorney threatened to prosecute a Dublin printer for inserting the death of a living person. The menace concluded with the remark that "no printer should publish a death unless informed of the fact by the party deceased."

On every clear Sabbath three aged men attend worship in the Pacific Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn. Rev. Henry Behm, ninety-two years old, member of the church for sixty-four years; Daniel Ayers, seventy seven years old, a member of the church for sixty one years, and O. T. Wandell, ninety seven years old, and a member of the church for seventy-seven years. All of them retain surprising activity of body and mind

A celebrated French preacher, in a sermon upon the duty of wives, said: "I see in this congregation a woman who has been guilty of the sin of disobedience to her husband, and in order to point her out, I will fling my breviary at her head." He lifted his book and every female head instantly ducked.

Hon. Lucius E. Peck, of Montpelier, Vermont, died at Lowell last Friday The deceased was for many years one of the foremost members of the Vermont bar, having a large practice in several counties. He was a member of Congress from 1847 to 1851, and he held the position of United States District Attorney under President Pierce. He was for many years the leading Democrat of the State.

Mrs Burdell Cunningham, who was reported among the lost on the Evening Star, is at present residing at San Francisco, California, having seven years ago married a gentleman named Hayes, who is possessed of considerable property at Loretto, Lower California.

An only son of the late Hon William L Dayton is to marry the only daughter of Hon Geo H. Pendleton.

The newspapers are publishing a paragraph giving the "signs" that accompany certain sorts of hair Here are Quilp's notions on that subject. Black hair is commonly a sign that it has been dyed, especially when it has a reddish tinge at the roots. Stiff hair is a sign that it wants oiling. Short hair is a sign that it has been cut, and long hair, vice versa Curly hair is a sign of —tongs Uncombed hair is a sign of laziness and bad taste

Professor Blackie, of Edinburgh, recently excused himself from having made a silly statement by attempting to make the "blundering reporters" responsible. The reporters held a meeting, compared notes, and addressed a letter to the Professor, who was obliged to retract It is true that reporters sometimes make nonsense of speeches, but it oftener happens that they make speeches of nonsense

The amenities of politics in Nevada are rather peculiar On Thanksgiving day, Mr Winters, late Democratic candidate for Governor, got boozy, and announced his ability and willingness to whip any Black Republican, whereupon he was soundly thrashed by State Comptroller Nightingill.

Clough, in one of his recently published letters, tells a capital story of "an aged Calvinist woman who, being asked about the Universalists, said, 'Yes, they expect that everybody will be saved, but we look for better things.'"

Mrs Anne Drummond has been arrested in Davenport, Iowa, for trigamy She confesses to three husbands
